Island Brewery

The Marmalade Pale Ale hosted at Cowes Ale House was amazing. This was Chris's second marmalade-based beer, the first being that glorious Marmalade Porter hosted by the Bargeman's over the New Year. For those that never caught the treat of either edition, you know that candied orange bitterness that you can get with Seville oranges, that is followed by an undertone of sweetness, well there it is, now imagine how that complements the chocolate coffee flavours in a full-strength porter, and also imagine how that sits well with the malt and hops of a traditional strong pale ale.

Another one of Chris's 'specials' was "Ivatt the Engine", for the Steam Railway's Ivatt weekend - a very tasty oatmeal beer,

These beers, from the Coleman stable, however, are for the genuine connoisseur, the aficionado who knows how to sip and savour to enjoy those complex flavours, having the patience to let them build and subside in order to enjoy the full experience of the transitory sensations that only a true connoisseur has the training and self-discipline to do so. This sort of experience, it is true, is totally lost on your average drinker of bland, insipid, sugar infused drinks like the rubbish lagers, chemical beers, and artificially induced and sweeter crap that so many profess to enjoy.

"Chris is everything that embodies the honest artisan" says Steve Minshull, MD of Island Brewery and Island Ales.

In fact, you can book any beer style and brew that you like in Chris's small batch artisan venture, and whoever you are, be it a Council wanting to celebrate an occasion by showing off the Island's best, a Company or organisation hosting or celebrating, or a private individual just wanting something different to impress a group of friends, and if you don't have any definite idea, Chris has a whole raft of flavours and styles to take you through, you can even say you want it to be like another named beer, but a bit stronger, weaker, sweeter or bitter.

But, there is a waiting list that gets more intense the nearer we come to the Beer and Buses event in October. "When we commissioned Chris to do these one-off small batch artisan brews", says Steve, "we had little idea that it would burst into such a popular full-time occupation. The feedback we get is tremendous, and those who caught our celebratory unique Black Knight black IPA, at Newport Ale House, say that it could knock our champion RDA off its annual perch!"

The difficult thing to understand is why more pubs on the Island are not embracing the demand for taste and innovative flavour. You only have to set foot on the mainland before you are bombarded with beers of all styles, flavours and combinations, but apart from a few more adventurous beer loving outlets on the Island, the majority of pubs seem to not be able to see beyond competing with each other with the same products, some of them, I (and many of my colleagues) have to say, are quite tired and relatively insipid. Why, for example, when you are a free-house, would you want to buy the same old national brands that tied houses have little choice in. When we go around the Island, on our annual Good Beer Guide surveys, it is always the more adventurous pubs that get unusual beers in that attract the discerning customer that, in turn, drink enough to keep them turning over fast enough, within that golden 2 – 3 day window, to keep them fresh enough to please the discerning drinker, and so the spiral upwards instead of the downward direction induced by keeping insipid

Goddards Brewery

Goddards Brewery is celebrating its 25th year anniversary and are marking the occasion with a re-release of its very first brew, the award-winning Goddards Special Bitter.

Originally brewed back in 1993 when the brewery first opened its doors, the Goddards Special Bitter recipe was developed with the help of the public, who won several awards including the CAMRA (Campaign for Real Ale) Beer of the Year in 2000 and Gold in the SIBA (Society of Independent Brewers) Regional Competition in 2004.

Brewery owner, Anthony Goddard commented: "It was the first ever pint that we brewed back in 1993 and I can't think of a finer way of marking the occasion". Managing Director, Xavier Baker added: "It has been really exciting to go back and brew something with 25 years of Goddards heritage. Goddards Special Bitter still tastes as good today as it did back in 1993. We can't wait to introduce it to a new audience who might never have tried it before, as well as our regular customers who were there with us at the beginning".

Goddards Special Bitter was due to be re-released on the 11 June in order to coincide with the brewery's anniversary. Get your pint from one of the 25 pubs across the Island who will be stocking this limited edition ale.

Yates' Brewery

Yates' trade in both cask and bottle has picked up greatly as the year progresses and this means that it is still necessary to outsource brewing of some of their beer at Goddards to cope with the volume.

They are delighted to welcome Broni to the team as Hayley's assistant.

Label and bottle collectors note that the Volunteer has produced its own label for a batch of Yates' beer, named 'Berts' Beer The Volunteers Choice.

As a collector of breweriana I was hoping there might be a special beer – cask or bottle, for the Royal Wedding, but it seems there simply isn't the market for beers for such one day events these days, although Windsor & Eton Brewery produced an excellent version of their 'Windsor Knot', no doubt helped by their location and the fact that they have just been awarded a Royal Warrant.

As those who joined us on the Shanklin Beer Walk in the Spring will know, July marks the 150th anniversary of the unveiling of the fountain in the Old Village with words by Longfellow. Upon seeing this Dave Yates penned his own variation –

*O traveller, stay thy weary feet;
 Drink from this glass, pure and bitter;
 It flows for rich and poor the same.
 Then go thy way, refreshed and happy
 The wayside well beneath the hill,
 The glass of beer of well known fame.*

Chairman John clearly has serious competition for his title as the Island's Poet Laureate!

Now that CAMRA AGM has been and gone and nothing much has changed, I've approached Nigel Firth, our Regional Cider Rep, about standardising, industrywide, what constitutes Real Cider and Perry and to form a standardised definition Nationwide. I have looked at other real cider/perry sites and facebook pages and it appears CAMRA and other organisations have different takes on what is a real cider/perry. It appears at first glance that the majority are of the opinion 85% must be pure juice. The sticking point seems to be down to pasteurisation, filtering and hot filling. Our Regional Cider Rep will approach stakeholders etc., to find if there can be a way forward on this topic.

MINIMUM UNIT PRICING

As you are probably all aware, Minimum Unit Pricing (MUP) came into effect on 1 May 2018 in Scotland. Wales now looks like to be introducing the same by the end of the year. If you think England has got away with it, you are wrong. Papers from this Government, Home Office & Lords state they have noted Scotland's MUP legislation and will be returning to it in the next 2 to 3 years to review the effect. If this tax on alcohol continues, we are in danger of pricing drinkers out of pubs, clubs and supermarkets. There are a lot of anti-alcohol groups who will be pressurising governments to up the price of all alcohol once the Minimum Unit Pricing is established. CAMRA needs to get a grip on this and lobby government on how sensible drinkers are being dragged in to higher alcohol prices due to the conduct of the minority. It appears drinkers are quickly sliding into the role the smokers found themselves in a few years ago.

Cider prices

Commencing on 1 Feb 2019, the government has legislated to raise the duty for cider/perry between 6.9% and 7.5% ABV. The theory behind this is to target higher strength white cider sold cheaply in stores and supermarkets. They hope to target the irresponsible cheap cider drinkers. It's been suggested already that it will not affect consumption. White cider makers could also simply drop the ABV to 6.8% to avoid the duty and the irresponsible will still get their fix of cheap cider, leaving craft and premium cider/perry drinkers who enjoy the odd glass of higher ABV cider to foot the bill.

A Right Proper Pub!

A traditional pub, well known for its real ales and community spirit, popular with locals and visitors alike.

The award winning Newport Ale House and Cowes Ale House have been sold by their founders, Mark and Debbie Ridett to Rod Kellaway and Tom Sweet. Debbie said "Rod and Tom have worked at the Ale Houses for the 7 and 5 years they have been open and understand the ethos behind them. We didn't want to sell them to an unknown buyer who might change them and we know Rod and Tom will carry on the philosophy behind the pubs."

Mark explained , " we originally started the Ale Houses as we felt most pubs had become chain restaurants and as such had lost their community feel. No pubs on the Island have such a variety of beers, (over 2,000 different ales at the last count) and still being served straight from the barrel. Why stick to the same three beers as many pubs do when there are nearly 2,000 different breweries in the Country, most with a range of five or six ales?"

Debbie said, " We are one big family and over the last seven years we have met so many lovely people, a lot of whom have become firm friends ."

Mark said, " Last year I was looking out into the garden and noticed I didn't recognise any of the clothes on the washing line. They turned out to be one of our elderly gentlemen regulars whose washing machine had broken down – Debbie had brought them home for washing – That sums up the Ale Houses for me" says Mark whose motto for the Ale Houses is " How pubs used to be and should be"

Mark and Debbie would like to thank all the regulars and customers for their support over the years – "The Ale Houses would be nothing without your custom.

We will still be regulars in the pubs" says Mark. "We are content in the knowledge they are in good hands with Rod and Tom and after all you don't turn your back on your family do you?"

In Wightwash a while ago there was an article on Burt's Walmer Castle Inn with an image of its pub sign and an explanation of how it came by the name. I thought readers may be interested in a pair of Burt's signs I've recently come across. They have been carefully preserved and stabilised by Barry Millership from Seaview who worked as a restorer at The National Maritime Museum at Greenwich, so they were in expert hands.

They are painted on silk faced plywood and are indeed very rare survivors. They are certainly not enamel signs. The silk was used as a plasterer uses scrim over joints to help stop them opening up. Gilders when working on picture frames use silk on the corners under layers of gesso when applying gold leaf. Gesso is a fine filler mixed with glue to serve the same purpose on a smaller scale. In this case the silk was used to stabilise the painted surface, holding the grain tightly together. The signs are painted in black and green on a cream ground. Small areas of chips and flaking show these have been over painted on colours including maroon and gold leaf.

It is believed that the signs are about 100 years old, so they truly have age. In the booklet "Ventnor Breweries" by Richard Downing published 2017, on page 5 there is an image of The Volunteer with sign written panels in a style identical to these.

In the booklet "Inns and Ale, from Bonchurch to Chale", by Vincent Chambers, published 1985, there are photographs on pages 34 and 35 that also carry the same style of signage. Both of these publications can be obtained from Ventnor and District Local History Society who produced them.

The two panels which are approximately four feet high and two feet six wide are reputed to have come from the Terminus Hotel in Ventnor but I've not been able to find a contemporary photograph showing them. If anyone out there has an image showing the panels in situ doing what they were supposed to and advertising their home I'd love to see it.

Interestingly, Ann the last licensee from The Walmer Castle, is a near neighbour of mine. I have been keen on interviewing her about time spent there. She agreed, but some while ago, so I must get on and do it!

Although there is some evidence that prior to the eighteenth century there were breweries that owned their own pubs, it wasn't until the latter part of the century that it became the big business that we would recognise today.

There is no doubt that the firm of Mew Langton dominated the Island pub scene for the best part of two centuries.

It began when Benjamin Mew began buying up pubs under the name of Mew & Co. Brewers of Newport and Lymington. This business was inherited by his three sons, Tom, William Barron and Joseph, although Tom was later "bought out" at a cost of £400 a year to live in style in Walhampton. William and Joe expanded the business to include an army canteen trade and branches as far afield as China and India.

To pay for this expansion, Walter Langton was brought into the business. In 1873 he injected £20,000 and the company became W.B. Mew, Langton & Co. The partners at this time were William Barron Mew, Joseph Mew, Walter Langton and Charles Templeman Mew (William's eldest son).

Tragedy then befell the family. Charles was badly injured when his horse bolted and he was thrown into a brick wall near Coppins Bridge. He never recovered.

By now William and Joe were old and in poor health. It was decided to bring Charles's brother Frank Templeman Mew in to the company. Frank was a shrewd businessman. He consolidated and increased the company and in 1887 formed it into a limited company. He continued to control the business until his death in 1921 leaving his interest in trust to his son Francis Joseph Templeman Mew.

In 1927, having completed his training as an architect, Francis J. Templeman joined the firm and took over management of the building department. Under his direction, considerable improvements to the firm's properties were made, adding much to their value.

During the wars, buildings and methods were brought up to date. Motor transport superseded horses and branch transport was centralised at Newport. Francis J. Templeman Mew, like his father before him held office as Mayor of Newport and during the last war was away on active service returning with the rank of Lieut. Colonel.

Luckily, the brewery survived World War II unscathed and brewing continued uninterrupted. At one time the firm was brewing for six other breweries.

By 1965 Mew Langton owned two hundred pubs and twenty off-licences in the Isle of Wight, Lymington, Portsmouth and Southampton with an annual turn-over in excess of £1.5 million. In that year, however, a take-over by Strong & Co. of Romsey was accepted and Mew Langton's independent existence came to an end. In 1968 Strong's itself was bought out by Whitbread and part of the huge Crocker Street brewery site became a depot. The remainder was adapted and redeveloped as sheltered housing.

Bursledon Brickworks Beer and Buses Festival

Saturday 12th May saw us off to the above festival. Train to Swanwick where we were met by an historical bus which dropped us off at the brickworks museum. This was an afternoon event ticket only which ran from 12.30 to 18.00 hrs. 18 ales and 8 ciders on offer which I must say were all in excellent condition. Also bottled beers and wine.

The ales on offer were locally sourced and a good range. We tried The Devil Made Me Brew a 5.6% oatmeal stout brewed by Arbor. Black Furnace 5.6% a black IPA brewed by Fallen Acorn. Old Freddy Walker 7.3% an old dark ale brewed by Moor. Dragons Blood 4.8% a chocolate and malt ruby red ale brewed by St. George's. Martha's Mild 5.3% a dark ruby red mild brewed by Teignworthy. Kaleidoscope 6.5% an amber dry hopped IPA brewed by Vibrant Forest.

PerryLetic 7.5% easy drinking sweet perry by JJs Cider and Traditional Farmhouse 7.5% a dry full flavoured cider by New Forest.

All these excellent ales/ciders were enjoyed whilst we were entertained by St. Andrews Pipe Band, Deorfrith Morris and Kazbaas.

This made for a very enjoyable day out. The ales and cider were excellent, entertainment good, not too crowded and very friendly.

The Chequers Inn (approx. 5 miles)

(incorporating the New Permissive Footpath)

(1) Start your walk from the Chequers Inn garden through the Ramblers 50-year celebratory gate. Turn left and continue along the new permissive footpath. Pass through two more Rambler's named kissing gates and follow the path up and over the top of the hill. Pass a house painted white on your left and join footpath GL6 between two oak trees

(2). Turn right and follow the path until you join the main road (3). Turn left and walk along the pavement for approx. 700 yards. Just after the junction with Niton Road, turn left up a stony track, Bunkers Lane.

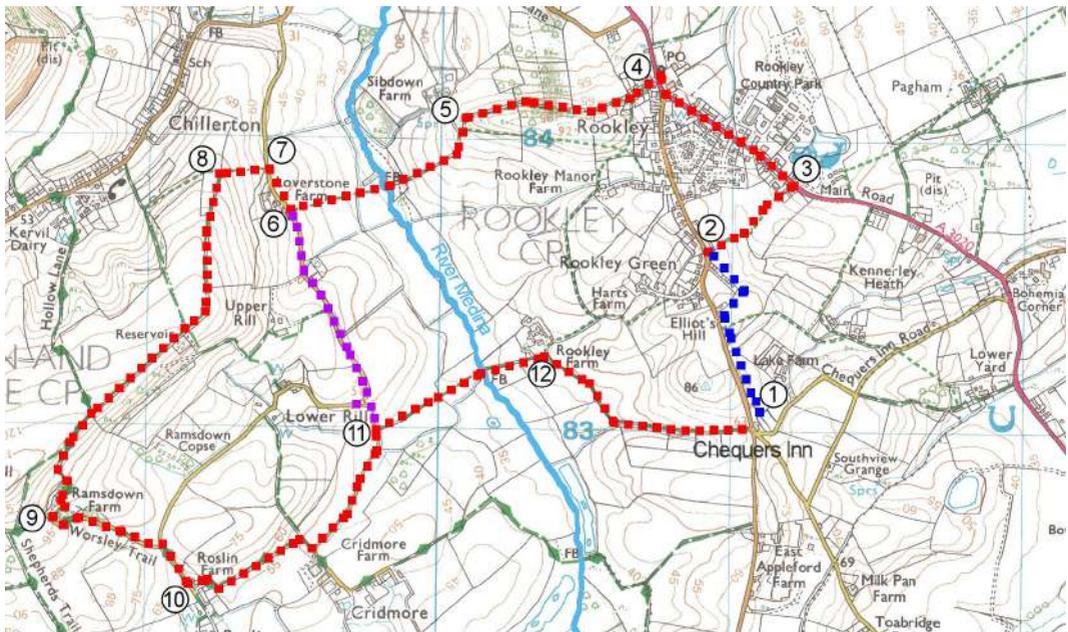

(4) After the houses, continue through Bunkers Copse and beyond. Where the track bends sharp right (there is a notice "Private no Right of Way") turn left through a gate.

(5) Go downhill, along the field edge, with the fence/hedge on your right. Go over the double stile at the bottom and cross the narrow field to the footbridge with two stiles. Then cross the field half right towards distant farm buildings to a stile by a farm gate beneath a tree. Walk straight ahead up to the group of buildings at Loverstone Farm on G19.

the hill where there are panoramic views. Follow this path as it turns right and with the hedge on the left. At a fingerpost continue on a track G15a to Ramsdown. Follow the track between two barns to a lane.

(10) to walk beside the farmhouse passing the hedge of the garden on your right and walk with the hedge on your right. At a fingerpost, turn right at the end of this field to reach the lane. Go left along the lane.

(11) Just after the lane bends to the left, turn right down a track G18 between hedges. Go through a kissing gate and continue straight ahead across the field (you may need to avoid a marshy area) to a stile and foot bridge and continue towards Rookley Farm.

(12) Walk up the farm lane to the road. Carefully cross the road. Enter the Chequers Inn and buy a well-deserved pint.

BeerPoint Update

BeerPoint is one of the peculiar successes thought up by IW CAMRA, used and admired by members of other branches and ordinary members of the public visiting the Island. Coveted by landlords, it can act as a bit of a stick and carrot when a pub's standards are found to falter.

Its popularity and reliance has grown fast, outgrowing the simple system that we devised to regulate it; bearing in mind that we are all volunteers, many of us with full time day jobs and more! What we found was that there were so many pubs in it that it was hard for the active membership (those that attend and feed into branch meetings) to keep it up to date, and we were increasingly reliant on receiving complaints, which then included complaints that BeerPoint was not effective as it was not up to date.

This really hit home when we did our annual Good Beer Guide surveys, this time using other criteria than scoring based on the NBSS (National Beer Scoring Scheme), checking for specific indicators like temperature, freshness (how long a beer has been on for), range and choice and, yes, CAMRA membership (whether the landlord actively promoted Real Ale), and it soon became apparent that there were some discrepancies, even misunderstandings, on what was acceptable and what a Real Ale drinker should expect. We therefore decided to suspend BeerPoint whilst we put our thinking caps on and went out and talked to random Real Ale drinkers about what they expected and looked for as an ideal Real Ale experience. The list distilled down to four items that any Real Ale drinker would expect in the pint they are served:

The advertisement features four beer taps with labels: RINGWOOD RAZOR BACK (Pilsener Beer), RINGWOOD BOON DOGGLE (Dunkelweizen), RINGWOOD FORTY NINER (Pilsener Beer), and RINGWOOD OLD THUMPER (Pilsener Beer). To the right is a logo of a deer's head in a square frame. Below the taps and logo, the text reads: "RINGWOOD ★ BREWERY ★", "Come and visit the Ringwood Brewery Shop (Open: Monday - Saturday 9.30-5pm)", "Tours are also available, booking compulsory. Call our Brewery Store on 01425 470303", "138 Christchurch Rd, Ringwood BH24 3AP", and "WWW.RINGWOODBREWERY.CO.UK". There is also a small sign on the left that says "VISIT THE WINDING DOWNS" and a small truck icon on the right.

- Beer served at the correct temperature (11 – 13 deg C)
- Fresh beer, that has not been hanging around too long, getting stale, picking up bacteria, off flavours and infection. Best practice, employed by CAMRA top-rated pubs is no longer than 3 days.
- Beer stood in lines for a while (e.g. between sessions), is pulled through (and not served to the customer!)
- Pints are automatically topped up!

These are the things that anyone should expect and should be promoted by anyone serving Real Ale that knows and is enthusiastic about keeping and serving their beer in prime condition (“my babies” Andy Windows used to call his casks on stillage – for those of you who remember dear old Andy!). So we decided to make a poster for prominent display at the bar stating what the customer can expect, signed by the landlord so that they buy into the standard by making a statement of commitment to supporting it. There is also a bit about purpose and what to do if what is stated is not what you find. That is ready to go.

What now remains to be done is the work on all the background items that support the delivery of good beer and we have a checklist taken from industry best practice, CAMRA, Cask Marque, and the Cellarmanship bible by Pat O’Neil. We have a draft, but now it needs to be tested amongst our selection for this year’s Good Beer Guide pubs and any wrinkles ironed out. Then we will be ready for the relaunch.

Swainston Manor and the Temple Folly

The Island Manor of Swainston has a long and colourful history. Its earliest mention is when it belonged to the Bishop of Winchester eight hundred years ago. It came into the possession of the Barrington family in later years and among its notable owners was the Island MP Sir John Barrington, whose tomb in Calbourne church is dated 1776.

The Barrington family used Swainston as a family home and saw many improvements over the years.

To enhance the outlook, it was decided at one stage to erect a replica historic building. A copy of the Greek Parthenon was the strange choice.

The original partially collapsed but a subsequent owner, Andrew Wyld, an art dealer, was keen that it should be restored.

Two young local stonemasons, Alan Chandler and David Hailstone were entrusted with this formidable task.

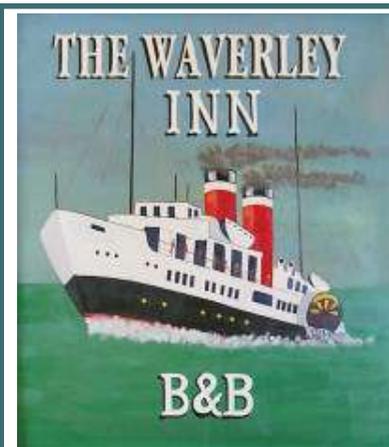

Work began in 1983 and took over three years to complete.

Much of the original French masonry was lost although some still remains on the site (pictured). In selecting suitable material for the restoration, Alan and David decided to use a mixture of Bath stone and the local Dodpitt stone, a form of shale.

Not surprisingly, the original builder left no instructions so some improvisation was required.

Behind the pediment is a fine example of "Isle of Wight coursing" where two rows of large stones are followed by a layer of narrower, flat stones.

The result - this striking façade which is still visible from the main road.
